
Lesson #8 With Wang Zhen

Posted by Rick Anderson - 2005/11/29 21:49

terrible practice...i was very low on energy...after having played 5 hrs of hockey....didnt even want to show up...but took a 7 minute nap after hockey (??)to rejuvenate (sp) myself....

settled for mainly serve and serve return drills..

no english taught...very little table tennis taught...

unimpressive...

guess its bound to happen sometimes...

i give myself credit for showing up...thats about it

rick

Re:Lesson #8 With Wang Zhen

Posted by amondin - 2005/12/23 02:35

Hi,

thx for taking the time to journal your lesson experiences. Interesting reading.

-Ken

Re:Lesson #8 With Wang Zhen

Posted by ktananan - 2006/01/24 22:40

perhaps the communication barrier to begin with. May be she expect a trainee more readier? I guess?

Re:Lesson #8 With Wang Zhen

Posted by Rick Anderson - 2006/01/27 22:29

ktananan wrote:

perhaps the communication barrier to begin with. May be she expect a trainee more readier? I guess?

the "barrier" was insignificant...we couldnt discuss profound theological ideas but that really wasnt the goal...wang made himself understood just fine....as for being ready...i was born ready...i live ready and i will die ready..

must be all that helen ready i listen to...

;)

rick

Re:Lesson #8 With Wang Zhen

Posted by Rick Anderson - 2006/01/28 15:19

amondin wrote:

Hi,

thx for taking the time to journal your lesson experiences. Interesting reading.

-Ken

hi ken

thanks mate...no problem..i had an excellent time with wang during our work-outs

rick anderson

=====